

Dragon Rouge Flies into Town

Dragon Rouge, Alameda's newest Vietnamese fusion restaurant (2304 Encinal between Park & Oak), has announced their "Official Grand Opening Week" to the public. Festivities begin on Feb. 14th, with the grand finale taking place on "Tet", Vietnam's most popular holiday, from 12pm-2pm Sunday, February 18th. This Lunar New Year's event will feature authentic food and pride-filled rituals, including a Dragon Dance performance bringing good health, prosperity and longevity, while also warding off evil spirits.

Starting the week off, on Valentine's evening, February 14th between 4pm-10pm, an exotic "Pre-Grand Opening" menu in addition to the normal menu will also include a complimentary option of a dessert dish, glass of Champagne, or Sake cocktail to kick off the week's festivities.

The next event will be a Ribbon Cutting Ceremony with Mayor Beverly Johnson and the City

"We are very happy to open our doors, not only to do business, but also to share our amazing culture and history with our community," co-founder and owner Dan Nguyen passionately explained. "It's been a family dream for years and now it's a reality. We are very happy to be here, and excited about sharing our family's delicious dishes and rich culture."
